The 215 trotting event on yesterday's card at the Virginia State Fair furnished the first race of the week which went into extra heats. Allie Wilkes, owned and driven by Dick Lawrence, of Boston, Massachusetts, was the sure winner after taking the first two heats, with Wempe, a bay mare, owned and driven by W. A. Dougherty, of Lexington, in second in each heat. In the third heat, however, Allie Wilkes dropped to second place, and Wempe captured the wire, and the remaining two heats went the same way, the final heat being made in the slowest time of the week. The Commonwealth Club Handicap Steeplechase drew out a field of eleven riders, and all took the jumps in fine shape except Little Horn, who dismounted his jockey and finished the race in a dispirited manner. The race was again thrown to the racers' neck, but remained the saddle and finished up among the also-rans. Chub, owned by J. H. Munford, of Richmond, and Lizzie Flat, owned by J. H. Munford, of Richmond, were the only horses to finish the race.
